

THE CRESCENT CITY NEWS.

Crescent City

One of the most beautiful locations in Florida. The town is in the southeastern part of the county, 5 miles from Palatka and is reached by either steamer or railroad. Crescent City lies on high ground which rises gradually from the west bank of Crescent Lake, a beautiful sheet of clear water is miles in length and from three to five miles in width. The town is well laid out in lots and grove lots, the former constituting a portion of the town and six blocks in width lying between two lakes—Lake Crescent on the west and Lake Stella on the east. The level of Lake Stella is 45 feet higher than that of Lake Crescent. This affords perfect drainage. The water of Lake Stella has its source in springs and is kept absolutely pure by the town authorities who have made it a misdemeanor to in any way contaminate it. The Plant System Railway touches the west bank of Lake Stella two miles from the town and a little steamer carries passengers and freight to and from the town and Crescent City Junction, the railway station. The trip by steamer from Palatka or Jacksonville, via one of the most beautiful water rides in the whole country, and the passenger who takes this trip is held entranced from start to finish. After nine miles south of Palatka the steamer leaves the St. Johns and enters the river, a rather narrow but very picturesque stream lined on either side by a thick growth of cypress, gum and palmetto—a veritable forest of giant trees. The water is so shallow and frequent that there is never a long touch of water in sight. For nine miles the river winds its way through the most beautiful and beautiful Lake Crescent. A run of an hour and a half lands the passenger at Crescent City, the terminus of the steamer. The boat leaves Jacksonville at 8 a. m., every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday; Palatka at 10 a. m., every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7 a. m., arriving at Crescent City at 10 a. m. and at Jacksonville at 10 p. m. No person ever took the steamer Crescent for Crescent City without expecting the consolation of a shore and a short trip, the little city makes any man or woman a life long lover of the place.

In the town proper are some of the most beautiful homes to be found in the state and the people are cultured and prosperous. There is a good school, two churches—Episcopal and Presbyterian—and two good hotels, besides pleasant private places where board can be obtained. Hotel and boarding house prices are moderate. The people have provided well kept streets for the entertainment of those who like this amusement.

Crescent City has more orange groves than any other town in the county. Orange groves are the leading occupation of the people and the quality of this fruit has long been regarded as superior to that grown in any other section of the state. Almost every citizen of the town has a well kept grove, many of which occupy the grove lands of the incorporation, while others extend into the country back. The normality of Crescent City are five miles, and they show signs of growth which would do credit to many of the larger cities of the state. Living is cheaper than almost any other town in the state.

The streets are lined with shade trees and the native live oaks, and broad sidewalks are laid on the principal streets. Bicycle paths lead in many directions.

Parties in Crescent City desiring to subscribe for this paper or wishing to receive their subscription thereto, may leave their names and money with Mr. E. D. Lounds at the postoffice, who is our authorized agent.

Personal and Social.

Mrs. J. A. Phillips returned from Hendersonville, N. C. last Thursday.

Bertie Lounds has entered the state agricultural college at Lake City.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hogarth of Fruitland were in the city last Saturday.

Master Kingsbury Norton has entered the Moody school for boys in Massachusetts.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Maull are expecting a visit from their son, Will, whose home has been in New York for the past eight years.

The space already reserved for exhibits at the state fair will occupy three-fourths of the interior of the main tent, 250x150 feet in size.

Pierre Gauthier has been here during the past week taking a rest from his labors as agent for the Atlantic Coast Line at Longwood.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Smith of Huntington have been entertaining and enjoying a visit from Mrs. J. B. Brown of Baltimore, Md.

Wallace Harp is home on a vacation, but is suffering from an attack of chills and fever. He is now the agent of the F. E. C. Ry., at Hastings.

E. H. Williams writes from New York that he is looking forward with much pleasure to his accustomed trip to Crescent City this winter. Mr. Williams has just moved to his new residence 543 west 147th street.

David Dawes has received a large shipment of fertilizer with which to urge his celery and other crops to the front. Mr. Dawes believes in "pushing things" as our old philosopher friend used to put it.

Mrs. Mary E. Smith has returned to her home in Welchville, Maine, after a pleasant summer passed with relatives of her late husband in Essex, Ontario. It is possible that Mrs. Smith may return to Crescent City this winter and reopen her home.

A. J. Smith of Huntington usually has plenty of guavas along with a bountiful supply of other fruit, and although his guava bushes were protected last winter, something has interfered to give him a very small crop.

J. A. McGaskill the Denver nurseryman is budding a large amount of sour nursery stock. Mr. McGaskill states that nurserymen now have little trouble in disposing of all the orange and grape fruit trees they can furnish.

Fred Anderson has been employed to decorate the walls and ceilings in both the residences of Hon. Edwin Gilbert and that of Miss Gilbert, on Summit street. It is understood that Miss Gilbert contemplates coming down quite early.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Read returned from a pleasant summer's outing at Buzzards Bay, Mass., early last week, both greatly improved in health. Mr. Read says that after leaving Massachusetts, they spent some time in New York and that he had a pleasant time with old friends.

J. L. Maull whose serious illness has caused a wide spread regret and deep anxiety among all our people, is still in a bad state of health, though those closest to him think they see a gradual change for the better, and predict for him now a steady improvement and gradual return to health.

J. W. Cowles of this place is one of the best shoemakers in the country and one of a type of artistic artisans that is fast disappearing. Mr. Cowles learned his trade before the advent of the machine and when all fine shoes were made entirely by hand. When he is given a pair of shoes to half-sole the job comes from his bench looking like a new pair of shoes.

It is understood that Coe D. Smith will arrive early this fall and that he will come direct from his Long Island home to Crescent City. This will be pleasing news to all our people, as Mr. Smith is one of the most popular men who come to Crescent City. In fact a winter would seem an unnatural season without him.

Mr. and Mrs. James Padgett, jr., have been in Jacksonville during the past week. Mr. Padgett is one of the heirs to an estate which is claiming a large tract of valuable land at Lake City, on a part of which is located the state agricultural college. The estate has won its case in two courts, and the matter is now up for final adjudication in the United States court.

Deputy Sheriff and Marshal Lastinger has determined to put a stop to the practice of certain negroes who have been in the habit of stealing row boats from parties who have them anchored on the lake front. Two or three instances of these thefts have occurred recently where the boats have been recovered from negroes who had stolen them to go across the lake and work. Charley Johnson was the latest of those to be caught. Hereafter the deputy sheriff will insist on complaints being made, and then he will have the cases prosecuted.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Maxon and their children arrived last week and are now pleasantly located in the Simpson cottage on Summit street. Mr. Maxon says that he came south to enjoy a year's rest and he could think of no better or healthier place to indulge his fancy than right here in Crescent City. This, too, after having traveled pretty much over the whole state and having spent several winters at other resort towns. Mr. and Mrs. Maxon were accompanied by Mrs. Maxon's mother, Mrs. Crawford and two sons, who have taken the Hutchins cottage next door, and who will also remain here a year.

Another One of Our Stores.

One of the best equipped and pleasantly appointed store rooms in the city is the establishment of C. L. Chamberlin. Mr. Chamberlin's store is a large two story building, the upper story being fitted up for a public hall with stage.

The store and hall was completed just before the 1894-95 freeze, and at that time there was a robust dramatic club in town that had a goodly admixture of nerve and talent and it was to provide a place for the club's entertainments that the hall was fitted up with stage fixtures, boxes and all the necessary accessories of a comfortably equipped theater. One or two plays were given and crowded houses greeted the performances.

Mr. Chamberlin had started in business about 14 years ago with Mr. F. S. Cone, in a brick store building for their purpose on the lot east of Mrs. Shaw's millinery store, but this was later burned to the ground.

His present store is always well stocked with what might be termed general merchandise, though dry goods, gents furnishings, shoes and groceries are the leading departments. Mr. Chamberlin is the local agent for the big Hamilton-Brown Shoe company of St. Louis, and he carries a large stock of the leading makes of this company both for men, woman and children. These shoes are all guaranteed by the maker.

Mr. Chamberlin has always been a leader in the better class of hats, shirts, neckwear, and goods for men, as well as in the character of his dry goods for women, and his stock this year is fully up to any he has yet had, even in more prosperous times. His grocery department is always supplied with things to tempt the appetite and his trade reaches out over a good share of the peninsula.

Getting Ready For Winter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Norton returned last week from the North Carolina mountain resort where they have been since the middle of June. Both are greatly improved in health, and have entered heartily upon the work of preparing Grove Hall for the reception of their fall and winter guests.

Early in the spring the house was newly plastered, and all that now remains to be done is to decorate the walls, (and this will be done in each room) and attend to the regular fall house cleaning.

By November first Grove Hall will be in better shape than ever to cater to the comfort of its large and constantly growing contingent of winter visitors. The coming season gives promise of a greater number of guests than ever before, and many are already speaking in advance for accommodations.

Death of Frank Clark.

Frank Clark, one of the best known citizens of Huntington died on Wednesday morning, Oct. 1st, after an illness of some two weeks. What loss the community sustains by the death of this man is best told by his pastor, Rev. Geo. H. Ward, who said:

"The death of Mr. Frank Clark has cast a gloom over this place unequalled hitherto. It was not only that he was universally beloved, but his death was so expected that it was a shock to all. A man of splendid physique—in the prime of life, who had never known sickness before—to die after a fortnight's sickness of what seemed to be only a mild attack of malarial fever, is surely something to make the strongest and healthiest of us thoughtful—to consider our latter end. Mr. Clark united the strength and manliness of a strong man to the tenderness and sympathy of the most tender of women. He was always ready to help and oblige, and his care and tenderness in nursing the sick has rarely if ever been equaled by any man and not by many women. That he had many friends and no enemies, is, however, chiefly owing to the fact that not one, at least in this vicinity, ever heard him utter a bitter or unkind word against any one, man, woman or child. As a humble, devout Christian, a man who lived his religion, he goes down to the grave, his loss by all deplored. Awaiting the resurrection of the blessed, may his soul rest in peace in the paradise of God."

To this beautiful tribute to Mr. Clark, Mr. Ward not only voiced his own feelings, but that of all the people of this community, when he added that he "was more upset by his death than by anything which has happened here of late. About 10 years ago he came to confirmation and since that time he has been a faithful attendant on the services at Huntington, and I looked upon him almost as a brother. If you could have seen him him nurse poor Funk and his own wife, you would have loved the man as much as I do. I have never seen as much gentleness and patience in any man. The sincere goodness of that man was something phenomenal."

Some Groves to the West.

Some of the groves over in the neighborhood of Grovesdale and beyond are looking particularly thrifty just now, and while there does not appear to be a great quantity of fruit, there is no question but that the trees, considering the slight damage done by the cold last winter, have added much to their bearing capacity for another season. The property of Mr. Hinchelliff will not have much fruit this year, but the trees are large and appear to have grown considerably during the summer. Mr. Hinchelliff always keeps his grove in a high state of cultivation. The same is true of the property of Mr. W. J. Norton. The old Hart grove on the opposite side of the road, now the property of "Squire Harp," is also looking well. The trees are not so large as those of his neighbors, but it now begins to look like a coming property. "Squire Harp's" old hammock grove is said to be one of the most beautiful sights of any of the young groves in the neighborhood. It is so well protected by forest trees on all sides that few ever get a glimpse of it.

The groves of Arthur Lane, the Ingall Bros. and Dr. E. E. Jenkins are all in fine condition and thoroughly cultivated. Mr. Lane and the Ingalls Bros. have considerable fruit. Dr. Jenkins will have some. Mr. Swabey's trees are also looking well.

Across the railway track the grove of Deacon E. H. Stone stands alone in its glory. Most of the other groves in that neighborhood have been abandoned, but Mr. Stone, it now seems will soon be rewarded for his perseverance. The trees in the western half of his grove show the effects of last winter's cold, but despite this they have made much progress during the summer. The eastern half of the grove has considerable fruit. The whole place has been carefully attended as the trees bear evidence.

POMONA.

R. C. Middleton spent several days down south last week.

Miss Mary Smith left here last week for Jacksonville where she will visit her brother.

The Misses Della, Nora and Cora Middleton are with us again, attending school here.

The C. E. meeting was led by Miss Grace Keown.

Gleanings.

"Something What Ain't."

"Republican prospects south" is the title of an editorial in the Washington Post. Now what's the use of writing about something what ain't?"—Commercial Appeal, Memphis, Tenn.

Getting Results.

Booker T. Washington, the famous negro educator, who barely escaped with his life in the panic in a church in Birmingham, Ala., the other day, in which over 100 persons were killed told this amusing story in a recent speech:

"There was an old negro, professionally pious, who wanted a luxurious Christmas dinner, and who might after night prayed the Lord to send a turkey. The days passed. Christmas approached, and the old fellow undertook to compromise by asking the Lord to send him after a turkey. He got one that very night."

Outside the Inside of the Rail.

At the sumptuous supper served the Wild Roses after the performance, Mrs. Vanderbilt's men guests stole away from wives and sweethearts and joined the chorus girls in bumpers. "We were outside the inside of the rail," said the cleverest girl in the bunch, "I never realized how wholly outside we were until at the table I remarked to a girl at my side: 'Isn't Mrs. Vanderbilt the loveliest, dearest, most charming woman you ever met?'"

To my startled surprise a voice from behind my chair and which seemed to come up from the depths of a coal shaft, said: "You're mighty right, Mrs. Vanderbilt, she's all right!" I turned to behold the ebony face of the waiter—and this one, like his companions, stood rigid as a statue, his white eyes straight before him, and his face blank as a stone. "We don't do no business with the inside of the rail," he said, "but we do with Mrs. Vanderbilt's guests? Not much. We were outside the inside of the rail, and he was on the fence, and he knew it."—New York Press.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase for 75c the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of consumption and throat and lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful that we called your attention to Roscoe's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds, croup, but for severe coughs, bronchitis, croup, and especially for consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like Roscoe's Syrup. Sold by all druggists in the civilized world. You can get this reliable remedy at Lounds' drug store, Crescent City, Y. G. G. GREEN, Woodbury, N. J.

Cardinal Moran on Ireland.

In the Tablet Cardinal Moran says of Ireland's present condition: "We see a never-ceasing decrease of population, so that while 50 years ago we had more than 7,000,000 of inhabitants, today commencing a new century, we are not more than 4,500,000."

"As a result of emigration from Ireland's shores new Irelands are springing up on every side, girdling the world with friendly nations wherever the language or accent of the British empire holds sway."

"No English-speaking country is so remote but Erin's sons will be found among the most enlightened and the most industrious of its citizens, foremost in love and justice, in hatred of tyranny, and in defense of freedom. If we have gone, we will be sure to come back to motherland."

"I thank the Almighty that I was born in Ireland, poor Ireland, suffering Ireland, holy Ireland. I venerate the footsteps of Ireland's early saints, her ruined sanctuaries, her wayside graves. I love her harbors, her rivers, her lakes. I rejoice in her blue mountains, her mossy streams, her undulating plains. I cherish every leaf of her forests, every flower of her meadows, every shamrock of her green hills. So long as life remains it will be my prayer that faith, hope and charity, the virtues typified by the triple leaf of that dear little sacred plant, may every day abound more and more among Erin's sons."

DO YOU WANT TO YAWN?

Fest cold shiverings, aching in the bones, lack of energy, headache, and great depression? These symptoms may be followed by headache, high fever, extreme nervousness, a condition known as malaria. If you have it, take it before the di-ase gets a fair hold, though it will work a cure in any stage. J. A. Hopkins, Manche ter, Kan., writes: "I have used your great medicine, Herbine, for several years. There is nothing better for malaria, chills and fever, headache, biliousness, and for a blood-purifying tonic, there is nothing as good." 50c at Ackerman & Stewart's, Palatka, and Lounds' drug store, Crescent City.

The Coming Man.

Prof. W. J. McGee, of the United States bureau of ethnology, recently laid down his pipe long enough to make this prophecy about the coming man: "He will be white. His average height and weight will be 5' 10" and 160 lbs. His head will be larger. His hands and brain will be better co-ordinated. His vision will be stronger; his sense of smell more acute, and his hearing and sense of taste more delicate. On the whole, the man of the future will be stronger in stature and weight. He will live under a universal republican government. Disputes will be settled by courts of various magistrates. There will be a universal language—a composite of all present tongues."

MOTHERS.

Who would keep their children in good health, should watch for the first symptoms of worms, and remove them with White's Cream Vermifuge. It is the children's best tonic. It gets digestion at work so that their food does them good, and they grow up healthy and strong. 35c at Ackerman & Stewart's, Palatka, and Lounds' drug store, Crescent City.

Scarlet History of Murderer Young.

The New York Herald's Salt Lake City, Utah, correspondent contributes this chapter to the history of William Hooper Young, murderer of Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer in New York: Robert Louis Stevenson once wrote a tale of mysterious Mormonism. Sir Conan Doyle turned the point of "A Study in Scarlet" on the dark doctrines which are a feature of this peculiar faith. They failed, however, to imagine anything more romantically tragic than the story that lies behind the murder of Mrs. Anna Pulitzer in New York.

Polygamy made of William Hooper Young, her alleged murderer, a wanderer and a vagabond on the face of the earth. It left him homeless, to find his own way, without the constant guidance of father and mother when his character was being formed.

Young came from the "royal family" of Utah. When he was born Brigham Young was in the height of his power, and the second son of the prophet, John W. Young, was strong in the finances of the mormons. He was a counselor to the 12 apostles, a builder of railways, financial agent of the church whose word carried weight in the banking offices in Wall street.

On John Young had been laid the obligation to enter into polygamy. As the son of the prophet it was his duty to testify by deeds to the doctrine that only by taking a plurality of wives could one hope to enter the celestial kingdom about which the prophet Joseph Smith had told. Living in separate houses in Salt Lake City and other parts of Utah, he had four families, sons and daughters who were thought to offer promise of greatness in the future, as they inherited much of the many brilliant qualities of their grand-father and father.

With a fifth wife, however, came disaster to the family. John W. Young met the beautiful Luella Cobb, and they were married according to the laws of the church. His infatuation for his wife was remarked throughout Salt Lake City. He seemed to care little for his other families, devoting himself to her, taking her on his journeys to New York and London, and giving little of his time to his other wives. Their children were reared at his home, but it was not theirs in fact.

His first wife, the mother of William Hooper, the alleged murderer, resented this infatuation. Her belief in mormonism departed and she sought a divorce in the civil courts, and moved away from Utah, taking with her the younger children. The elder sons remained with the father, and for a time he gave them a home. When he went to London to negotiate a loan to build a railway which he intended to lay between Salt Lake City and Denver, his sons, John Wesley and William Hooper, were members of the household over which his wife Luella presided. They were given such schooling as was possible in London.

Such an arrangement could not last however. When John W. Young returned to Utah to build his railway, William Hooper came with him, and when the father returned to London the young man was left to make his own way. There was no place for him in the home of the favorite wife, and he was sent first to a cattle ranch owned by his father in northern Arizona, and then was brought north again to work upon the railway line. He was then 17 or 18 years old. He was left practically homeless and to his own devices. One of the sons of John W. Young had disappeared and nothing has been heard of him since by his family. Another, a full brother, after a wild career, had gone to the penitentiary for robbery. William Hooper was turned from his father's employ, and when about 21 years old, began his career of wandering, which took him almost from one end of the earth to the other.

For a time several years afterward he seemed to be under the good influences of his mother, but his wild habits had become too strong, and about four years ago he broke away from her and started for London, hunting for his father, to demand a living. He arrived in New York without money, and worked his way to London on board a steamship.

William Hooper, however, found no welcome from his father. He was furnished with money to return to Salt Lake City, and was told he must rehabilitate himself. By this time, however, he had become a confirmed wanderer, who preferred to live by his wits. Some of his relatives in this city aided him materially and saw that he obtained good employment, but it was not long before the discovery was made that he spent the money he thus obtained on women and drink.

He left Salt Lake City about three years ago, and it was understood that his mother had again undertaken to reform him. He lived much of the time with her in Seattle, and attempted to do newspaper work, but about 18 months ago he returned to Salt Lake City and then went on to New York, having told his friends that his father would help him.

Those who knew him here believe that he has remained a mormon, despite his wanderings. His father is known to be strong in the faith.
